Skin Rejuvenation That Works When All Else Fails

Skin aging and sun-damage in light to medium tone skin individuals manifests itself with fine and deep wrinkles, brown spots, sagging skin and rough enlarged pore skin. Fifteen years ago resurfacing lasers such as the carbon dioxide and erbium lasers produced remarkable results but with socially unacceptable length of downtime and prolonged and unpredictable side effects. While volumizing fillers such as poly-lactic acid can re-inflate the "balloon", the textural and fine line changes are not improved.

Laser have now been introduced that can more gently resurface the skin (Pearl) or which sparse portions or fractions of the skin from the laser energy (Pearl Fractional). Since most patients have both deep wrinkles and fine wrinkles along with poor texture and discoloration, often laser treatments such as Pearl and Pearl Fractional are combined in the same patient treatment session to give optimal results during the same downtime. These lasers are designed to provide their results in one to two treatments with shorter healing times than fractionated carbon dioxide and erbium lasers which often require several treatments to achieve similar results.

The Pearl Fractional treatment is designed to diminish those accordion-like wrinkles on the cheeks, around the eyes and mouth. The energy is delivered deep into the skin creating a zone of healing next to a normal or untreated area of skin. The latter helps reduce the time needed for the healing area to recover. Patient will have pink area of skin that require five days of staying home to apply compresses and healing ointment.

After the five day period make-up can be applied and even at this early stage improved results can be seen however maximum results will take three months. A seventy-five or greater per cent lessening of lines help to make this procedure well worth the downtime. The low incidence of complications such as infections and scarring makes for a favorable benefit risk assessment.

Pearl resurfacing is a gentle and safe non-invasive procedure to treat fine lines, uneven texture and sun damage. I tell my patient to expect one to two treatments and to plan on four days of downtime in which you can do routine task but may not want to have important social functions. About four days after the treatment the skin will peel revealing a healthy vibrant skin underneath. Improvement is noticeable within a week after treatment. This treatment can be done two months before a social event requiring your skin to look its best.

Deeper folds and creases around the mouth such the "parentheses" or marionette lines require a filler such a Juvederm®.

If required in the same individual who has undergone, a Pearl or Pearl Fractional treatment, it is best to wait a month. Juvederm® or hyaluronic acid is placed in the second layer of the skin or dermis to replace the hyaluronic acid and collagen lost by aging and sun-damage. As with any injection, there can be some bruising, swelling and redness for several days following the treatment. Most individuals can continue their routine schedule except occasionally following lip augmentation. The beneficial effect lasts up to a year and occasionally longer. If wrinkles around the mouth or eyes are not fully corrected by Pearl Fractional, Juvederm® ultra can be used in those areas to completely fill the remaining line.

With the tools of injectable fillers and laser resurfacing, we dermatologists can address enough of the changes of facial aging and sun-damage to reduce ones appearance by ten years. All patient must do that part and maintain a home regimen of sun-protection along twice weekly exfoliation and a topical anti-oxidant and collagen stimulating and protecting form of a retinoid.
